

The Minister's Weekly Word...

This week marks the holiest week in the church's year. On Good Friday and Easter Sunday we remember and celebrate the death and resurrection of Jesus out of which the Christian faith flows. While we may find certain emphases in different parts of the story, it is always important to hold the two days together. We cannot say 'Good Friday' without saying where it is leading, Easter Day. And we cannot say 'Easter Sunday' without saying from where it has come, Good Friday. Easter is the story of the divine love breaking into the world in the most astonishing and dramatic of ways. It is the story of the death of the Saviour, and also his conquering of death in the resurrection. These events have been immortalised in painting, poetry, sculpture, and art of different kinds, but in the end it is their infusion into the life of a person (and a people) that makes for the greatest rendering of their power. We are Christians, because we are of Christ. And by receiving and being shaped by that same love that was in him, we become his followers in the world, in our own way bearing witness to the Easter events. At Easter God leaves nothing in reserve. God gives it all for us and shows us what true life is really all about. It is life that doesn't shirk death, but sees to the other side even while enduring the darkness, and finds hope in an everlasting promise. This is God's gracious invitation to faith and it comes to us all. So, as we enter this holy time we come with eyes and hearts open to what God has in store for us all. Blessings, Michael suffered soul-destroying damage in the floods following cyclone Debbie. Their pipe organ was tipped on its side and swept away alongside floating pews, Bibles and hymn books. Their church building and Op Shop were filled with mud. We knew you would want to reach out to them, so the Church Council Executive have sent your greetings and a cheque for $1000 on your behalf, which may help some of their families who have lost all their possessions and some, their livelihood.
